“What are you giving up for Lent?” a friend once asked. Sometimes rather overlooked nowadays, we both began to recall the days when giving up some pleasure for Lent was almost a must. The sermon the previous Sunday had reminded us of the origin of Lent, the Forty Days in the wilderness, days of concentrated thought for Our Lord. He emerged later, knowing why He was here and what He had to do – to point his disciples to God, to celebrate life by loving Him, loving ourselves and, above all, loving our neighbours. We may sometimes neglect to give up much for Lent these days, but it’s not a bad idea to think about those Forty Days, remembering His love, and trying to translate it into service for our friends and the community. Two thousand years on, the lesson of Lent is still relevant.
